Tamarack Talk

Music makes an inroad in our column this week. It is a most timely one, if not always, the outgrowth of poetry. Music is and should be the final expression of the words. Music brings out the meaning of the words by various moods and tempos which in vigorous or quiet rhythms may suggest tragedy, or calm and peace. But always, as in the case of the greater compositions, there are words to be enhanced by the skillful arrangement of voice or instrument or both.

In a city where industrial activities are predominantly prominent and where it would seem there exists a lack of love for cultivation and enrichment of the nobler things of life, opportunity was recently afforded the citizens to accept or reject the offerings of the orchestra of the modern jazz and entertainment. That about one thousand persons chose to listen to the presentation of two orchestras in preference to a night at the club or the theatre proves that a love for a consciousness of beauty still exists, in spite of what would like to have us think.

An oratorio is a sacred work usually based upon some Biblical legend, tale or miracle, and presents a type of musical that should be even harder for some moderns to understand. But the love for the patience of 250, who comprised the vocal chorus on this occasion is proof indeed that we are still seeking to find the beauty of the words and the meaning of the truth through music and poetry.

Poetry and music go hand in hand. For some poetry is "words that sing," for others music is poetry. But all true poetry must have a certain rhythm to it, a saving that marks it apart from ordinary words. Poetry may be the tones of actual speech, yet a jumble of trite words and rhythms, or the thinking man, poet or listener, no sense of beauty or truth. Samuel Taylor Coleridge said that prose consists of "words in their best order," while poetry is "the best words in the best order."

Yet unless the public is some way stirred by sound of poetry and gradually comes to listen intelligently to poems, it will be bound down as it has been for years, unable to catch the worth of a poem except by the written word. The poem, however, may turn out to be the means of getting people more poetry, the conscious, guiding them away from the idea that poetry is lifeless, a thing of the past to be relegated to obscurity with other bygone institutions.

That poetry has been read more often than spoken makes the limitations in accepting and learning more about it, for, the many can ordinarily comprehend the spoken word with ease compared to the problem of digesting quickly from a mere reading of a poem. So it has come that only those especially interested in the movement in modern poetry have grown up both reading and hearing it, while the great majority need to have the expression of the words to really understand, from the inflection, what the words actually are meant to convey.

ESSAY CONTEST

Open to School Children of Maine

Announcement has recently been made of an essay contest, with prizes aggregating $200.00, open to all the school children of Maine, on the subject, "Why Maine is the State of My Opportunity." This contest is being sponsored by B. Peck Company, Lewiston, in connection with the celebration of its Golden Jubilee.

Two classes of prizes are offered, class A for pupils of high schools and academies, and class B for elementary school children. The prizes in class A are, 1st, $25.00, 2nd, $20.00, 3rd, $15.00 and ten prizes of $5.00 each for the ten next best. Prizes in class B are, 1st, $20.00, 2nd, $15.00, 3rd, $10.00 and ten prizes of $5.00 each for the ten next best.

The judges will be Hon. William Tudor Gardner, Governor of Maine; Mrs. Edna H. Haines, President of the Maine Federation of Women's Clubs; Hon. Arthur G. Staples, Editor of The Lewiston Evening Journal; Hon. Bertrand B. Packard, State Commissioner of Education and Prof. E. M. Wright, head of the English Department at Bates College.

Contest rules are being mailed to superintendents, teachers, and also may be secured on application to the Contest Secretary, B. Peck Company, Lewiston, Maine. The closing date will be May 15th.

The contest was inspired by the experience of the founder of the Peck Company, Bradford Peck, who came to Lewiston 50 years ago, at the age of 27, giving up employment in another State, where he was getting a salary of $5.00 a year, to open a store in Lewiston. How well his faith in Maine was justified, the Pecks of today testify.

ARBOR DAY, MAY NINTH

Governor Gardner has proclaimed May 9th as Arbor Day. The proclamation is as follows:

"Among our natural resources, trees have had and will always have a place of first importance. Maine is the Pine Tree State, and upon its soil a pine tree symbolizes the unfailing source of the prosperity and happiness of our people.

"In the very beginning of this State, when the men of Maine went down to the sea in ships, our greatest trees furnished both carriers and cargo. Today, with 75 percent of our area in forested lands, the further development of our commerce and industry depends upon the conservation of these gifts of nature.

"It is our duty and high privilege as citizens to leave nothing undone to secure to those who come after us the same beauty and refreshment in our trees and forests that we now enjoy.

GROW GOOD PULLETS

"We're sold on this project by actual experience," W. Warren Chadbourne said in speaking of the Grow Good Pullets campaign now being sponsored in Maine by the first two points of the program together, while I tell you of some of the experiences which have grown into us a belief in the essential soundness of the method.

"First, Hatch Chicks Early."

"For over 20 years we have been urging our baby chick customers to get their chicks early. Year by year we have seen an increasing trend toward the earlier hatching. This has been especially true since the value of Old Liver Oil in feeding chicks has become known. In fact, the value of early hatching seems so well established in the minds of poultry keepers generally that it hardly needs to be greatly stressed. I would not minimize the point, however, that it is one of the fundamental requirements for a successful poultry business.

"Second, 'Secure Chicks from Pullorum Disease Free Stock.' 'Pullorum disease, you know, is what we formerly called Bacillary White Diarrhea. Two years ago as we were expanding our hatching business, we thought it would be a good thing to be on the Acquired side to understand. But the love for the patience of 250, who comprised the vocal chorus on this occasion is proof indeed that we are still seeking to find the beauty of the words and the meaning of the truth through music and poetry.

"We devised what we thought a good way to check up on the laboratory. We placed the nine reacting birds in a pen near the hatchery. When we walked in with a cooed we were willing to sacrifice and saved some of their eggs from which on January 4 we hatched 26 chicks. The machine for the nine reactors and the cocked had been marketed. These 26 chicks were apparently healthy, grew well, and were finally marketed when they reached broiler size, without one of them showing the slightest symptom of disease.

"Was it not natural to suppose if we got such results with the chicks of reactants, we were safe in hatching and selling chicks from the non-reactors? We certainly thought so and so did others to whom we related our experience, but the first two hatches following this 'test' went all right with the chicks which were kept at home and those which were sold and some kept at home. Word soon began to come from some of the customers that they were losing chicks. Investigation showed that something serious indeed was the matter with that lot of chicks. Our own chicks started dying and we sent specimens to Orono for diagnosis.

Mortality in our own flock and in some of those we had sold became very heavy in some cases rising over 50 per cent. We for the epidemic ran its course, besides stunning many of the survivors. In the meantime, another hatch was coming off. What to do? Well, our customers were dying and we were willing to take the chicks with the understanding that we were standing back of them.

"The first hatch was in fact, conclusive. We had made the mistake of sending dead birds instead of sick ones. So we sent another lot and in a few days a word came that they had isolated the Pullorum organism. That, of course, was conclusive. We decided it was time to turn our backs on the Pullorum disease. From this we selected from flocks from which we secured eggs to fill orders for baby chicks already taken and to start our own new hatchery. We cleared out and cleaned up one of our brooder houses and when the chicks hatched which we were to raise, we put all the old stock under quarantine. By this means we were able to keep the new stock clean so that the next fall we got them acclimated.

"In the meantime we were making good as best we could the losses of our customers. We had lost the value of several dollars by not accepting a few more of the Agricultural College in the first place. So we say 'Amen' to point 2, 'Secure Chicks from Pullorum Disease Free Stock.'"

the Colonists to attack and capture Fort William and Mary at Portsmouth. He was commissioned a major of infantry in the Massachusetts Militia in April, 1776, and later was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel of Artillery and finally received Command of Castle William in Boston Harbor.

John Woodis, the past week.

Candy was on sale.

Celia Gardner is a member of the Sophomore class and has led the school in studies for the last two years. She is a resident of Watford. Her average for the term was 96.5. Elmer Martikainen, with an average of 96.5, also has been at the head of the honor roll often. He plans to enter the University of Maine,

where he will take a course in Electrical Engineering. Martin Adams of Allston, Mass., with an average of 94.2 has already been accepted at Dartmouth College. He is captain of track here and has run anchor man on the relay team for the last two years. Martikainen was also a member of the track team at the Academy.

Never has there been so much interest in baseball in the Academy as this spring and nearly every boy in school has been spending the past few warm days in this pastime, with several unorganized games being played over the week end.
The Bridgton Mentor believes he has the material for one of the best prep school

Thus Bridgton is out to uphold her championship of baseball last year, once again.

The Bridgton Academy Junior Varsity
baseball team, which proved such a success last spring has gotten underway for this year's season and the boys are all

SOUTH ALBANY

Donahue Taking Census—Large Number
of Crows About.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morrison of Por-land, who are stopping at David McAlis-ter's, have a baby boy, born Sunday,
April 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Henley were at Norway, Friday, on business.

Ernest Grover and Merritt Savin are cutting wood together on Mr. Savin's lot. Mr. Grover has gone to Charles Hersey's in the Rice Neighborhood with his gasoline outfit to saw Mr. Hersey's big wood pile.

Mrs. E. K. Shedd of Biddeford visited her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Brown, Sunday.

David McAllister has taken home the horse that Ernest Grover has wintered
for him.

Errol Donahue of Albany was here last week, Friday, taking the census.

About a hundred crows gathered in one flock on one of Merritt Savin's fields
a few days ago. A very uncommon sight at this time of year. If they hang out all in this vicinity and increase in the usual proportion, some crows by corn pulling time. Lets hope part of them will go farther on and help out some other fellow on the job of getting rid of the bugs and worms.

George Crooker and Mr. Damon of Norway were at Merritt Savin's, Saturday afternoon. They came with the cow that Mr. Crooker had wintered for Mr. Savin.

Ernest Brown, Ingalls McAllister and Theodore Brown have been at work on the road here, several days last week.

Everyone here was shocked and saddened to hear of the passing away of Mrs. Edith McIntire of East Watford.
Mrs. McIntire is very well known here, she was born on the place now owned and occupied by Ernest Grover and lived her childhood years there until her marriage to Mr. McIntire. Her beautiful character as girl and woman has been recognized by everyone with whom she came in contact. To know her was to love her. When anyone was in distress then was the time she knew how to help in her own lovely way. She never knew an idle moment, but her hands were always busy with something for those she loved. She had a passion for flowers and her loving friends well remembered this in the great profusion of beautiful blooms which surrounded her in her quiet sleep. Far and wide are tear filled eyes and aching hearts for the one who has gone away from us.

Donahue Taking Census—Large Number
of Crows About.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morrison of Portland, who are stopping at David McAllister's, have a baby boy, born Sunday, April 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Henry were at Norway, Friday, on business.

Ernest Grover and Merritt Savin are cutting wood together on Mr. Savin's lot. Mr. Grover has gone to Charles Hersey's in the Rice Neighborhood with his gasoline outfit to saw Mr. Hersey's big wood pile.

Mrs. E. K. Sheild of Bismectown visited her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Brown, Sunday.

David McAllister has taken home the horse that Ernest Grover has wintered for him.

Errol Donahue of Albany was here last Friday, taking the census.

About a hundred crows gathered in one flock on one of Merritt Savin's fields a few days ago. A very uncommon sight at this time of year. They hang out all in this vicinity and increase in the usual proportion, some crows by corn pulling time. Lets hope part of them will go farther on and help out some other fellow on the job of getting rid of the bugs and worms.

George Crooker and Mr. Damon of Norway were at Merritt Savin's, Saturday afternoon. They came with the cow that Mr. Crooker had wintered for Mr. Savin.

Ernest Brown, Ingalls McAllister and Theodore Brown have been at work on the road here, several days last week.

Everyone here was shocked and saddened to hear of the passing away of Mrs. Edith McIntire of East Waterford. Mrs. McIntire is very well known here, she was born on the place now owned and occupied by Ernest Grover and lived her childhood years there until her marriage to Mr. McIntire. Her beautiful character as girl and woman has been recognized by everyone with whom she came in contact. To know her was to love her. When anyone in this place dies was the time she knew how to help in her own lovely way. She never knew an idle moment, but her hands were always busy with something for those she loved. She had a passion for flowers and her loving friends well remembered this in the great profusion of beautiful blossoms which surrounded her in her quiet sleep. Far and wide are tear filled eyes and aching hearts for the one who has gone away from us.
